

Dear Friends,

A postdoc position is open at the Mechanobiology Institute in Singapore, for working with me. The institute activity ranges from single molecule experiments to developmental biology with a strong core in cell biology. and the small theory group I am heading is involved in all aspects. The postdoc position includes stays at the Curie Institute in Paris. There will be interviews of the candidates in August. For more informations the candidates can get directly in contact with me. Can you pass the information around you?

Many thanks,

Jacques (Jacques.Prost@curie.fr)
